

Using the cut-out words, have your child arrange them into parts of speech: nouns, verbs, adjectives, etc. Return to your newspaper and use the remaining headlines to play a game of "I Spy." Can your child spy a noun, a verb or an adjective?

Take it Further

Your child can print or copy the headlines, then follow the directions accordingly.

Note: If a paper newspaper is not available, this activity can be adapted by using an online newspaper.

1. Have your child pick their favorite mixed-up headline. Glue the words at the top of a piece of paper, and invite your child to create a picture and a caption to go with their new headline.
2. Be creative. Be silly. Experiment with different phrases.
3. Using your newly cut headline words, assist your child in rearranging them to create at least five new headlines.

Build Your Mixed-Up Headlines

1. Explore a newspaper with your child. Identify the headlines, captions and bylines.
2. As you explore, find the headlines your child likes best. For example, headlines with interesting words, creative phrasing, or familiar places and people.
3. Cut out at least ten headlines, separating them word for word.
4. Set these words aside.

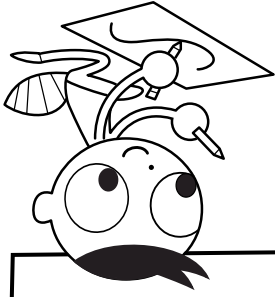

Collect Your Newspaper Words

How do I do it?

Mixed-Up Headlines

Home Activity

- Supplies
- Newspaper
 - Child-safe scissors
 - Large sheet of white paper
 - Crayons or markers
 - Glue stick

Fold paper in half to make an activity card.

Mixed-Up Headlines

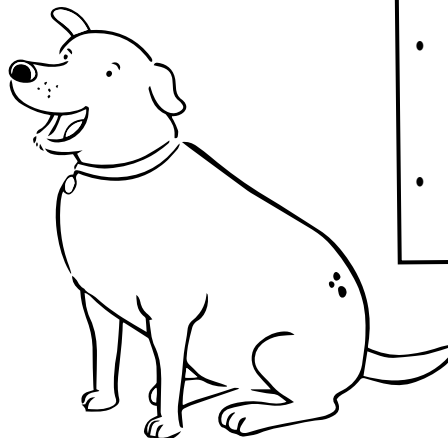

Home Activity

This activity will help your child:

- Build vocabulary and writing skills
- Understand the different components of a newspaper

What's the point?

Extra! Extra! Exploring words, their meanings and how they relate to other words builds core vocabulary and writing skills. Newspapers are a rich source of language-learning opportunities. In this activity, your newspaper needs some headline makeovers, and your child gets to do the remodeling.

Book Suggestions

- Extra! Extra!: Fairy-Tale News From Hidden Forest
by Alma Flor Ada
- The Furry News: How to Make a Newspaper
by Harvey and Bernard Adnet
- The Great Moon Hoax
by Stephen Krensky

Find more games and activities at pbskidsforparents.org

